

Isabelle Roberts - 'SOUNDTRACE'

I am fascinated by the space that we, as human beings, occupy with our physical presence but also the space we contain in the realm of thought and imagination.

Music often resonates within that space. It has a unique way to remind us that we are wholly body, soul and spirit.

As a violinist I am aware that creating music is very physical, involving the whole body in movement. The sounds that are created resonate within emotions; they evoke and create memories, images and states of mind. To me, Music seem to open secret doors in time that awaken the soul to its eternal depth and come full circle back to the body, inviting it to respond in movement and dance.

Through photography and the printing process I have aimed to capture visually that intangible space by tracing, with a source of light fixed to their hands, the shapes musicians create as they perform.

These '4 dimensional' drawing's perhaps help us see beyond what immediately meets the eye to perceive beauty and spiritual connection in the very ordinary gestures of our lives.
